U.S. Requires Faith, Confidence, Johnson Asserts In Talk To 1,300 President Confers

United States today are faith and confidence — faith in its own institutions and confidence in its future — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson told a capacity crowd of 1,300 Saturday night at the 11th annual Columbiana County Democratic Jefferson - Jackson Day dinner at Beaver Local High

The vice president's address highlighted a program at which the county party organization paid tribute to Rep. Wayne L. Hays of Flushing on his 15 years' service as 18th District congressman.

The vice president declared there are persons in the U.S. who do not have faith and confidence in the nation - "persons who never have seen a Communist but believe we have lost to them; people who fear the changing economic patterns which require new responses on our part if we are to maintain and strengthen our prosperity."

"THERE ARE persons in this country who fear the steps we must take if we are to assure genuine equality of opportunity and genuine equality before the law, so that every man, woman and child, regardless of race. creed or national origin, has this equality," he continued.

Turning to the integration struggle, he asserted that "these equalities were intended under the Constitution and 100 years ago when Presidnt Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation."

The Word Is 'Integrity'

It is by no means certain that would-be tax-cutters ever will understand why they now find themselves tangled in a party issue. According to all the rules of the political game, a proposal to cut taxes should be accepted without a dissenting vote. Where did the dissent come from?

What causes many congressional Republicans to risk their political lives by refusing to plump for a tax cut without a spending

The word that explains it is "integrity," which could be defined in this instance as a sense of honesty about handling public

THE THEORY that enterprise will be so stimulated by a tax cut that the government will collect as much or more revenue at the reduced tax rates may be sound. But the feeling that it is morally unsound to cut tax rates when the federal government is spending more than it is collecting is more than a theory. It is an ingrained

It reflects the people's instinct about protecting the value of the dollar, not only at home but in foreign exchange.

It grows out of the training of generations of Americans taught to pull their own weight and pay their own way. It may be, as some glib experts have hinted, that the American people are naive, square and fuddy-duddy about high finance.

But it may as well be that some glib experts in high finance are a little shaky in their comprehension of integrity in handling public funds.

UNLESS public practice jibes with what passes for integrity in handling private money, the American people are going to feel uncomfortable.

They would feel uncomfortable if their best friend piddled away up to 20 per cent of his income when he owned more than he could ever hope to pay and was going into debt deeper every year.

They feel uncomfortable about a tax cut.

Rep. Vinson Wants A Showdown

Rep. Carl Vinson of Georgia has pushed the civil rights issue one step closer to a showdown between the federal government and irreconcilable Southerners.

The long-time and deeply respected chairman of the House Armed Services Committee has called on Congress to make it a court-martial offense for any U.S. service man to obey a Defense Department order to stay out of areas that practice "relentless discrimination" against Negroes.

This is a peremptory challenge to the authority of the executive department of the federal government. It has been issued by a Southern legislator in an attempt to secure what would amount to a vote of no confidence in the Kennedy administration.

It is unthinkable that Congress would vote for the Georgian's proposal, but Rep. Vinson has thrown down a gauntlet so insultingly that Defense Secretary MacNamara and the Kennedy administration cannot ignore it.

NO AMERICAN aware of and concerned about the widening rift between the federal government and the once-secessionist South can ignore this provocative gesture.

Rep. Vinson is no irresponsible newcomer acting on impulse. He is one of the most respected members of the U.S. House of Representatives.

He is proposing military disobedience to an order issued under the authority of the commander-in-chief of the armed services of the United States.

He is asking Congress to authorize insurrection against a co-equal branch of the federal government, in the same mood of contempt that has moved many Southerners to scorn the rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court.

FROM WHERE Rep. Vinson is now to where he would be in open violation of his oath to uphold the Constitution of the United States is a step so short that for all intents and purposes he already has taken it.

If this is the way Southerners feel about a problem that has plagued military training camps situated in segregation areas, the Defense Department will have no choice but to relocate its camps in places where the problem does not exist.

For a start, it might look over the possibilities of the Ravenna Ordnance Works in Portage County.

Obey The Law

More motorists have been fined for exceeding speed limits on various streets within the East Liverpool city limits.

Such fines frequently stir bitter outbursts from those apprehended. Individual feelings notwithstanding, the fines serve a definite purpose - that of acting as a deterrent for others who might be inclined to ignore the speed limits. Such limits are established in the best interests of all. They serve to protect pedestrian and motorist alike.

Too many residential areas have been plagued with careless drivers.

The best way for the individual motorist to avoid a fine is to keep his speedometer within the prescribed limits.

Will They Plant A Whirlwind?

After farmers had voted out tight controls and high support prices for wheat last May, skeptics predicted they would plant wheat fence to fence this fall to make up their losses. For the first time since 1952 they could plant as much wheat as they liked.

The outcome of the wheat referendum was a stunning setback for the administration's program and also for the firmly held belief that farmers wouldn't shoot Santa Claus.

A recent spot check by Farm Journal magazine now suggests that the skeptics may have been wrong about that fence-tofence planting. Most growers of winter wheat seem to be planning to stay within their present allotments.

By doing this they can get a 50 per cent support price of $1.25 a bushel. Even if they

The wheat problem is a showdown on philosophy as well as crop management. Those with enough confidence in farmers to believe they will avoid planting a whirlwind they would reap next harvest time are in a minority after so many years of a managed wheat crop.

But those who were sure wheat farmers would make such a muddle of free enterprise they would have to yell for the Agriculture Department to rescue them are not as sure as they were last May. They may have underestimated the wheat growers.

Georges Pompidou, premier in the De Gaulle government, has announced a new plan to stabilize the French economy and to check inflation.

Most important among the government's plans is a proposal to reduce the deficit. The total spending budget, estimated for 1964, is about $19 billion. This would mean a deficit of about $816 million. The new plan is to cut this deficit by approximately 33 per cent or $273

An attractive bond issue will be floated to siphon off excess private spending and to induce abstinence in buying by the people.

SAVINGS BANK depositors will be encouraged to save more. Also, installment buying will be discouraged by raising the down payment on automobiles and television sets. The payment period will be reduced from 24 to 21 months.

Efforts will be made to stabilize food prices without arbitrary price-fixing. Wage increases will be discouraged without the imposition of legal wage ceilings by the government.

Premier Pompidou has explained that while France has enjoyed a fine expansion of business and general well-being, there must be stability or all the gains will be lost. The best way to assure such stability, it is believed, is to use the mechanism of credit, rather than to impose harsh restrictions upon the general level of the

History Shows Many Attacks On Rulings

Earl Warren, now 72, will be honored this week in San Francisco for his 10 years as chief justice of the United States. He has been one of the strongest chief justices in American history.

In this past decade, one of the court's most tremendous, he has been eulogized for decisions that were social and political landmarks. For exactly the same decisions there have been demands to impeach him and calls to lynch

The attacks are not new. The great Chief Justice John Marshall was reviled, too. Throughout history attacks on the court have been in proportion to special interests frustrated or public feeling stirred. Not all have been unjustified.

A collection of those attacks over more than 170 years, and this writer has made a collection, is often a bewildering sight.

The court, created in 1789, was attacked before it came into existence. Just the thought of it was enough to arouse some antagonism. No wonder it started off in

Even John Jay, the first chief justice, was convinced when he resigned from the bench in 1795 that the court lacked weight and dignity. He declined reappoint-

Marshall, secretary of state under President John Adams when he was appointed chief justice in 1801, was extraordinarily strong and articulate and a great constitutional lawyer. He changed the history of the court and the

He remained chief justice 34 years. No one has served longer. In those years he was responsible for decisions under which, by asserting the power of the court and the government, he made the federal system strong.

Most memorable was the decision in which Marshall declared the court had the power to rule out any act of Congress or a legislature which the court considered unconstitutional

This was not something that had been clearly spelled out by the framers of the Constitution. Marshall spelled it out and made it stick. He was repeatedly attacked. President Jefferson raged at him.

These were the three single decisions which, perhaps, got the most violent reaction in the court's history 1857-Under Chief Justice Roger B. Taney, one of the strongest chief justices, the court ruled in the case of a fugitive slave, Dred Scott, that a slave was not a citizen and not entitled to a citizen's protections.

ment's effort to settle the slavery separate.

WASHINGTON issue and was a factor in bringing on the Civil War. For years afterwards the court played a subdued and eclipsed role in the nation's affairs.

1895-The court declared the income tax unconstitutional although in 1881 the court had up-held the constitutionality of the temporary Civil War income tax. This got an enormously bad re-

It ignored the country's need for revenue. It took years for the country to undo this decision. It was finally accomplished in 1913 but only through adoption of the 16th Amendment which authorized an income tax.

1954-The court, reversing a previous decision of 1896 which said segregating Negroes was constitutional outlawed public school segregation and said the principle of segregation was unconstitutional. This decision, reflecting the world's midcentury attitude against the suppression of colored peoples, opened the gates to an American social revolution still going on. It gave Negroes the legal right to fight segregation everywhere.

Through history the court has reflected the mood of the times. or thought it did, for sometimes it has lagged behind the change in mood and attitude.

For more than half a century after the Civil War, in the time of American expansion when the philosophy of rugged individualism and no-government-interference dominated and there was scant concern for public welfare, the court followed that thinking.

As the 20th Century grew, and both the mood and needs of the nation changed, the court was still thinking in 19th Century terms, as it showed by knocking out President Roosevelt's emergency New Deal legislation.

It did a quick about-face after he forced it to face public glare by trying to "pack" it

The Warren court, besides infuriating many white Southerners with its desegregation ruling, bas angered other groups with its decisions over the past 10 years.

Politicians didn't like it when the court said it had a right to step in if states, many of them dominated by rural politicians, refused to give their voters fair representation in their state legislature by giving city dwellers more seats there.

And the court in the past couple of years antagonized various religious groups, or at least individuals within the groups, by banning the requirement of religious exercises in public schools although this decision is rooted it the historic principle of keepin! Retail Outlook

By Isadore Barmash

NEW YORK Retailers across the country are looking ahead a bit uncomfortably to a built-in problem-a Christmas shopping season curtailed by five shopping days. Thanksgiving Day, normally marking the onset of holiday selling, falls on Nov. 28 this year, in contrast to Nov. 22 last year. The effect will be to allow only 21, instead of 26 days in which to account for the normal 16 per cent of total sales volume done during this period.

If time in which to operate means anything, and it usually does in retailing, it also indicates that something like 20 per cent of the selling opportunity has been removed.

The shopping days that will accrue this year in the week before Thanksgiving will not tend to help the situation much, since their interim nature will not be a strategic time in which to operate mean-

FACING THIS situation, department stores in New York are planning to promote more heavily than they have in the last few years so that holiday advertising should have a hearty, competitive feeling. The last time there was a similar situation on Thanksgiving Day's timing was back in

All the extra promotions will not be on a price-accent basis. A number of stores are planning to put greater stress on normal seasonal events.

Other stores, anxious to remain in character, will rely on beefing up staffs and offering a full complement of merchandise, rather than promoting more heavily.

In the meantime, department store sales in New York slowed down in tempo last week. Back-toschool and fall apparel business continued to show their strength of the last few weeks, but home furnishings activity lagged in a number of stores. The city's department stores had an average 1 per cent gain last week and a 1 per cent increase for the four-week period ended, according to a flash Fed-to-wear and children's wear sales were better by comparison. The early arrival of cool weather has proved a boon in spurring apparel business, but efforts to generate interest in big-ticket merchandise proved unsuccessful in some of the city's largest establishments.

THE FACT that consumers are taking readily to fall apparel offerings has been evidenced by glowing reports from major apparel specialty stores. As reported. many of these are looking ahead to a big fall season, possibly a banner one.

In department stores, however, the situation is proving more problematical, at least as far as last week was concerned. On store-wide basis, as one executive put it, "We are working hard just to stay even. It's neither discouraging or encouraging. There just isn't enough movement to make us feel elated.

Here's Idea On A Retreat For Parents

PORTLAND, Ore. - Home designers for modern living are pretty sensible and straightforward. And, once in a while, an architect comes up with an idea which is really in the forefront for practicality.

For example, many new houses now sport a master bedroom suite which is located away from the children's wing. This gives beleaguered parents a peaceful retreat of their own which includes not only the bedroom, bath and dressing rooms, but often also an adjoining den.

In addition, some of these apartments have a private, parentsonly outdoor living area. The Moms and Dads who have one love it for its serenity and privacy. Steel Expects Output Boosts

CLEVELAND (AP)-Steel consumption in the nation's mills is running well ahead of earlier exnectations, and it may accelerate to a record pace next year, Steel magazine said today.

Some industry economist are saying 1963 consumption will be second only to that of 1955, Steel reported.

The national metalworking week ly said marketing men virtually are unanimous in predicting that this year's ingot output will be hetween 106 and 109 million tons.

Despite the talk of record consumption next year, Steel said, nobody thinks 1964 ingot production will match the record 117 million tons poured in 1955. The reason cited was that there was a lot of inventory building in that year and not much penetration of domestic markets by imported mill products.

Current steel bookings are running well ahead of last month's. and October shipments are ex-pected to about 10 per cent higher than September's, Steel said.

Output this week is expected to exceed the 1.82 million ingot tons that the publication estimated the industry poured last week.

Operations will be near 60 per cent of unofficial capacity, having risen gradually from the year's low point of 56.8 per cent in the week ended Aug. 17, the magazine

Some important information for every man who will need a new truck within the next 12 months

New Chevrolets are a lot more truck than your money bought the last time. Here are some of the things that have been done to give you more value for practically the same investment.

Double-wall construction. This feature of Chevrolet cabs and the Fleetside pickup body has two advantages. Insulation and sound-deadening material is sandwiched between the two layers of steel in the cab to give you more comfort; in the body, the inner wall acts as a buffer against load damage, preserving the outer appearance of the truck.

Suspension to fit the truck. You get a much better ride in every size Chevrolet truck today than you used to.

Conventional half- and three-quarter-ton models have independent front suspension with variable pitch coils in the rear. Variable pitch coils do not "bottom out" as readily.

Mediums and heavies have I-beam suspension with variable-rate leaf springs. This variable-rate leaf-type suspension automatically stiffens as the load increasesand vice versa. It means a smoother, flatter ride regardless of load, a better handling

The right engine. Chevrolet has been building truck engines since 1918 but never has it been in better position to give you the type and size you need for maximum efficiency. Today there are many different capacities of gasoline and diesel Chevrolet truck engines-fours, sixes, V8's.

Stronger frames. Every conventional 1964 Chevrolet truck has a ladder-type frame. Formerly used on heavier trucks only, this type is more resilient, better able to give with the load and terrain, to stand up under stress. Its simple design also makes it easier to mount special bodies on the truck. Its riveted side rails are stronger.

Greater model selection. This time you're going to find it a simple matter to pick the exact type of Chevrolet truck for the kind of work you do. In delivery trucks, for instance, in addition to regular panels and pickups, we have eleven different sizes of ready-made walk-in vans, some with fullwidth rear doors.

There are also the Corvair 95 vans with the air-cooled engine in the rear. And the Corvair 95 Rampside with its exclusive side-loading feature. These trucks have more power this year.

In the medium- and heavy-duty area there are stakes, tilt cabs, low-cab-forward models and cab-and-chassis units to suit almost any requirement-including school bus bodies of up to 66-passenger capacity.

Dump truck operators now can order a Chevrolet tandem with either gasoline or diesel power.

Quality and value. Chevrolets today are a lot more truck than your money bought the last time, and yet the price tag is just about the same as 5 or 6 years ago. Call your Chevrolet Dealer for information or for a demonstration.

Dentist Raps Medical Plan

CLEVELAND (AP)- Presiden Kennedy's Social Security medi cal protection proposal would low-er the quality of health care, says Dr. James P. Hollers of San Antonio, Tex., president-elect of the American Dental Association.

The medical needs of the aged are covered by the Kerr-Mills program, Hallers said in an address to 2,000 members of the Ohio State Dental Association Sunday night at their convention here.

Hollers said experiences of other nations are proof of the administration's medical legislation would be inferior to Kerr-Mills.

The latter provides federal medical aid funds to states to help those aged persons unable to af ford medical expenses.

Hollers urged use of the Kerr Mills program, which "together with private insurance will meet the health needs of the aged better than any compulsory federal program ever could."

The convention will consider 29 resolutions Tuesday.

-Junior Editors Quiz on-CAMELS

QUESTION: Why does the camet have a hump upon his back?

HOLDS HIM UP IN THE SOFT SAND

THE CAMEL'S FOOT

* * * ANSWER: Camels, even if they are ugly, awkward looking beasts, have worked for man longer than any other animal, and have been of inestimable value to him. Without them. men could not have lived in the dry desert country of the Near East-and it was here, remember, that the first civilizations started. Camels have the ability to go without water, and also without food, for considerable lengths of time. They can survive severe desert conditions which would destroy other creatures.

Many people believe that the camel carries a reserve of water in his hump. But this is not true. The camel has reserves of fat stored in his hump, and this acts as nourishment when he can't get anything to eat. It is true camels can get along without water for long periods. This is because, unlike most animals, the camel does not have to sweat to keep his body cool. Camels will drink a great deal of water when they have a chance, but since they don't sweat, their water supply lasts them a long time.

* * * FOR YOU TO DO: Ask a friend if he knows where carnels live and he'll probably say Arabia and the Near East. He'll be right about one kind of camel; but you can then tell him about the Bactrian camel, which lives in north central Asia in such places as the Gobi Desert. This is the kind of camel with two humps.

* * * Jenny Jones of Opelika, Ala., wins today's grand prize of a 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review and you too may win a set.
